

ESLINT Static Analysis

ESLINT

We used ESLint tool to analyze our code. We preferred using this over JSHint and JSLint due to few advantages that ESLint has over the other two. Although ESLint requires manual configuration in the beginning, based on some quick comparison we found that it is easier to understand the output produced and that it has greater flexibility and already has a lot of rules configured.

Configuration used:

? How would you like to configure ESLint? Answer questions about your style
? Are you using ECMAScript 6 features? Yes
? Are you using ES6 modules? Yes
? Where will your code run? Browser
? Do you use CommonJS? No
? Do you use JSX? No
? What style of indentation do you use? Tabs
? What quotes do you use for strings? Double
? What line endings do you use? Unix
? Do you require semicolons? Yes
? What format do you want your config file to be in? JSON

Commands:

In project folder, `sudo npm install eslint --save-dev`

In `node_modules/.bin/eslint`, `eslint --init`

Use the configuration answers mentioned above. You will see the following message.

Successfully created `.eslintrc.json` file in `/Users/komala/s17-ESN-SV7`

Advantages:

- Found a file that we had assumed was being used but turned out it wasn't
- Showed discrepancies in different member's style of coding - helped set a standard to be followed
- Helped get rid of console statements used temporarily for testing
- Helped get rid of unused variables

Disadvantages:

- Some false positives - keywords were being listed as not defined - maybe we should have configured ESLint better?
- Indentation issue was annoying to set right - would have been great if ESLint could have automatically indented the code - but then again, that was our fault and not ESLint
